

As an event planner I have used the services of Pinpoint National Photography on many occasions. They always deliver outstanding service and photography every time. And events are not always easy to shoot.

I recently took the opportunity to get my own headshots redone through a service offered by Pinpoint. As usual their service and results did not disappoint.

What was wonderful and exceptional was the care Michael and his team took to help me prepare for the ‘dreaded’ headshot session. (Remember I’m a professional event planner not a professional model.) For example, the week before my photo shoot, Michael sent through a tip sheet with a list of ways to prepare including a reminder to drink plenty of water and get a full eight hours sleep the night before. I can’t imagine another photography service providing that much care and attention to their clients.

If you need photography services of any kind don’t hesitate to call Michael and the team at Pinpoint Photography. I know you will be delighted with their service and the results.
